Christy Mathewson gained a trifle on Roger Bresnahan in the voting contest under the auspices of The Evening World to determine what member of the Giants, in the opinion of the fans, is doing the most to land the pennant for New York. Bresnahan still has a lead of over 8,000, but the friends of "Big Six" are getting busy, and he is able to jump into the lead at any moment. In the event of a tie for the prize, each person so tied will receive a prize similar to that offered.

A few of the letters inclosing votes are printed below.

Here are nineteen votes for Bresnahan, the hard-working backbone of the Giants, who has put them where they are today. He is worthy of them all.

Inclosed please find twenty-five votes for my old friend Mike Donlin.

Inclosed please find 107 votes for the mightiest Giant of them all.

Inclosed please find four votes for Mike Donlin, the greatest of all. He will win the contest, all right!

Inclosed please find two votes cast for Mathewson, the greatest pitcher that I ever heard of in the last twelve years.

Inclosed please find fifteen votes for one of my ideal baseball players of the New York Giants, without a question, Charlie Herzog has proved himself to be an excellent substitute as second baseman and batter as well, and a wonderful base runner with your mental as a sweet reward for his excellent work.

Inclosed please find fifteen votes for Roger Bresnahan, whom I think is the best all-around player in the world, and I think the prize belongs to him.

Inclosed please find fifteen votes for the dear old "Iron Man," bless his heart! Who said he was all in?
